For over 10 years, a model aircraft club has been organising a surprising Easter egg drop!

Every half an hour, a squadron of remote control helicopters and aeroplanes will drop a hailstorm of thousands of chocolate Easter eggs.

Between each manoeuvre, the pilots will give plane, helicopter, drone and glider demonstrations. There will also be various "special" machines: remote control parachutists, flying Smurf (depending on the weather) ...

Practical information

- This event is free but very popular: booking (by email or phone) is required.
- There will be a vast car park, heated marquees if the weather is on the chilly side and access for persons with reduced mobility.

- BBQed meat and snacks will be available for lunch.
